

The National Redress Scheme

ADACAS Advocacy

If you experienced abuse, you deserve an apology. You deserve support and counselling. You deserve compensation.

The National Redress Scheme is a response to the abuse experienced by children in orphanages, children's homes, schools, churches and other religious organisations, sports clubs, disability service organisations, social services and other institutions.

How we can help

We help people in the ACT and New South Wales South Coast apply for payments through the Scheme and gain access to counselling.

To keep you safe and in control, we use trauma-informed practices to help you with your application. We will discuss your options with you and help you to write a personal statement that details the abuse, and how this has impacted your life.

Find out more about applying for the Scheme at the ADACAS website at adacas.org.au/redress

We are your advocates

ADACAS is a not for profit, independent human rights organisation that can support you to complete your Redress Application. ADACAS advocates also provide individual advocacy for people with disability and people experiencing mental ill-health living in Canberra and regions across NSW. We ensure your voice is being heard on matters that are important to you and we can be your contact with the Redress Scheme.

ADACAS is an inclusive organisation that welcomes Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people, those where English is not their first language and people from the LGBTIQ+ community to contact us.
